

BULGARS ON AN ADVANCE IN GREECE

ITALIANS LAND LAGE FORCE OF MEN TO TAKE PART IN ADVANCE OF LINES IN SALONIKI DISTRICT.

SITUATION VERY GRAVE

Other General War News Shows Russians Advance and Italians Hold Their Own In Their Campaigns.

Athens, Aug. 21.—The Bulgarian forces now moving toward Kavala have already pushed their outposts to a point seven miles from that Greek seaport.

Tell of Advance. Berlin, Aug. 21.—The German and Bulgarian forces which have taken the offensive on the western end of the Balkan front, are pushing southward in Greece, the war office announced today. They have wrested further positions from the Serbians and beaten off efforts to recapture ground won.

Used Flaming Liquid. Paris, Aug. 21.—The Germans delivered a violent attack on Fleury, near Verdun, last night, using flaming liquid, but without result, says the war office statement today.

Paris, Aug. 21.—The Bulgarian forces in the direction of Kavala are also causing disquiet, although the impression is general that this movement is a mere political maneuver, calculated to influence Roumania and affect the Greek election.

Italians Land. Paris, Aug. 21.—Italian troops began to disembark at Saloniki yesterday, says a Havas dispatch from there. On leaving their ship, the dispatch says, the Italians passed through Saloniki to camp, preceded by military bands of the allies and cheered by the people.

Active participation by Italian troops in the Saloniki campaign would mean the existence of a state of war between Germany and Italy. Germany is directing the operations against the allies on this front, and the official German reports show that forces there. Some Austrian troops also probably are employed, and possibly a considerable portion of the army is made up of Bulgarian troops. Recent reports had indicated the withdrawal of Austrian troops from the Balkans for use on the Russian and Italian fronts.

As the entente allies are believed to have a force of some seven hundred thousand British, French and Serbian troops on the Saloniki front, the sending of reinforcements at this time just after the opening of hostilities on a large scale would indicate the allies had embarked on a campaign of extensive proportions.

Italy, which has a considerable surplus of troops, has been urged to take a more active part in the Balkan operations, but was believed to have refrained partly on account of the fact that the war was not at war with Germany.

There have been several recent indications, however, that a declaration of hostilities was forthcoming. A common treaty between these nations was abrogated. A German court ruled that Germany is actually, though not formally, at war with Italy, and last week it was reported that the defense of Trieste would be taken over by the Germans.

Italian participation in the Balkan operations hitherto has been limited to occupation of the Albanian port of Durazzo, which was effected before Italy declared war on Austria.

London, Aug. 21.—Strong German detachments drove back British patrols northeast of Highwood, on the Somme front, this morning, but were stopped when they came under the fire of the British positions west of the wood, says today's war office statement. Bombing attacks on Highwood were reported.

Russian Advance. Petrograd, Aug. 21.—Russians have made some advances at some points along the Stokhod line where they broke through the Austro-Hungarian defense last week, the war office announced today. The capture of more than 1,800 men in this region is reported.

The Russians are pressing forward vigorously to two of the Carpathian passes which lead to Hungary. Following announcement of last week's advances in vicinity of Korosmezo, which is just over the border in Hungary, the war office today reported gains in the paths east of this region leading south from Kuty. The capture of Jablonizka and Fereskul, on the Cherevosh river, which forms the boundary between Galicia and Bukowina, is announced.

Italian Movement. Rome, Aug. 21.—The Italians have advanced in the region east of Gorizia and on the Carso plateau are holding fast to the ground won, occupying themselves with consolidating recently captured positions.

HOPES ARE TO AVERT CAR STRIKE IN N. Y.

New York City Mayor Hurries to Hold Conference With Street Railway Employers and Workers.

New York, Aug. 21.—In the hope of averting a threatened strike of street and electric railway employees that would tie up not only the surface car of at least three of the boroughs of this city, but the elevated and subway lines also, Mayor Mitchell hastened home from Flatbush, N. Y., today to confer with the railway men and their employers.

SENATE VOTES TO TAKE IMMIGRATION QUESTION IN HAND

Senate Decides by Three Votes to Take Up Immigration Bill Which Democrats Postponed.

Washington, Aug. 21.—By twenty-seven to twenty-four the senate today voted to take up the immigration bill which the democratic caucus had determined to postpone until next session. Nine democrats voted with the republicans for the motion.

Passage of the bill seemed assured by today's action. President Wilson vetoed the bill last year, because of the literacy test.

Some democratic senators believe the president will not veto the bill again, although it read in the literary test to which he then objected. Those who think the president might sign the bill, point to his veto message in which he wrote:

"I have no choice of opinion in this question. I am not foolish enough to profess to know the wishes and ideals of American better than the body of her chosen representatives know them. I only want instruction direct from those whose fortunes with ours and all cases are involved."

The motion to take up the bill was made by Senator Smith of North Carolina, chairman of the immigration committee. The committee has amended the house bill in an effort to meet objections of Japan to the sections relating to Asiatic exclusion.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR SILVER BANK

Illinois Central Trust Company Named as Receiver For Adolph Silver Bank.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—The two private banks of Adolph Silver & Company, which were closed Saturday when Max Silver, manager of banking houses, died, were placed in the hands of the Central Trust Company of Illinois as receiver today, following filing of an involuntary petition of bankruptcy by counsel for three debtors. Deposits in the banks are variously estimated at from $40,000 to $100,000.

Adolph Silver, who founded the banks and who has been in California for his health, was reported to be assisting the authorities in straightening out the situation. Meanwhile, the search is being made for Max Silver, charged with receiving deposits in involuntary bankruptcy. Twenty-five policemen were called on one of the banks to restore order, when a crowd of people, numbering nearly 1,000 made what looked like an attempt, to storm the building.

FOUR ARE INJURED AS TRAIN STRIKES AUTO AT LINE CITY

Frank Upham, 77 Years Old, Not Expected to Live—Other Man and Two Women Suffer.

Beloit, Aug. 21.—Four persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, here last night when an automobile driven by Frank Upham, a local insurance man, was struck by a Chicago and Northwestern train and dragged along the tracks.

Frank Upham, 77, will probably die of a fractured skull. Mrs. Frank Austin, is suffering from severe scalp wounds and body injuries. Frank Austin, her husband, has a neck bone broken. Mrs. Charles Upham sustained severe bruises and is suffering from the shock and her husband has been unconscious since the accident.

The collision happened about 8:30 o'clock when Austin was driving on Portland avenue. He did not see the approaching train until too late to stop. The engine pilot struck the machine just back of the front wheel but as the train was not moving fast the car was not tossed into the air. Instead it was dragged for a distance of about twenty feet.

HAS JAPAN PURCHASED LAND TRACT?

STATE DEPARTMENT HEARS MIKADO'S REPRESENTATIVES HAVE REPRESENTED SIXTY THOUSAND ACRES.

YELLOW PERIL TALE

Purchased Through Spanish Representative by Aid of the Newly Elected President of Panama Republic.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Investigation of reports from Panama that a 60,000-acre land concession at the Atlantic end of the Canal, is being sought by a Spaniard named Ferrand, presumably for Japanese interests, was reported today by Secretary Lansing.

Mr. Lansing refused to discuss the report in detail, but it was considered significant that the government should commence its action.

Rumors of similar nature has been common ever since the Canal was well under way, but it was not until several months ago that they reached a well defined outline. At that time, it was commonly believed in diplomatic circles that private Japanese shipping interests were seeking through Spanish intermediaries to establish a base for storing coal at lower rates than could be had from the American government monopoly.

So far as is known nothing definite came of that plan. The present reports are that Ferrand, Havana agent for Japanese interests, secured a 60,000-acre land concession through activity of Ramon Valle, whose recent election to presidency of Panama may possibly be disputed by United States because of alleged frauds and coercion. Admiral Concha of the Spanish navy, selected by the Panama government, as umpire to settle the dispute with the United States, over the price of Canal property is alleged to have given very valuable information about the canal itself.

DRYLAND SAILORS ON THE BRINY DEEP

Frank Hayes Writes Experiences of Jansville Contingent on the Illinois.

Sailing sailing, over the briny deep,
For many a stormy wind will blow
E'er Jack comes home again.

Frank D. Hayes, on board the United States steamship Illinois, writes a most interesting letter on the experiences of the Jansville contingent who are taking part in the naval preparedness cruise along the Atlantic coast. Mr. Hayes' letter is as follows:

"We left Norfolk at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the good ship Illinois. There are about two hundred of us in all, and about that many volunteers. They tell me that a complete complement would be about six hundred.

"The first thing we did when we got on the ship was to get sea clothes—two suits of white, one dunnage, two hats, swimming suits, etc. Our suits are white in the beginning. We have to do our own washing. Keating and Pember have become so proficient that they expect to start a laundry when they go home. We sleep in hammocks tied on the gun deck, about six feet above the water. One has to practice gymnastics to go to bed. If you sleep it is because no one on earth can keep you awake. My first night I went to bed at 8:30—was called at twelve and went on deck to get a watch assignment; back to bed at 12:30; up again at two; back to bed; then up again at six; breakfast at 7:30, dinner at twelve and supper at six. We have been out to sea for seventy-two hours and are now anchored in Port Pond Bay, off Long Island Sound. There are nine ships anchored here. All of them carry volunteers. They are from New Mexico to Maine. We have had a few fakes and expect to fire some of the smaller guns before we come home.

"I am writing on what is called a 'ditty box' and sitting flat on the gun deck. Our address is U. S. S. Illinois, care Postmaster, New York."

HAS NEVER-FAILING CHARM

Biography Holds the Readers' Attention More Than Does Any Form of Literary Endeavor.

Reading biography will furnish you with a peculiar and rare form of entertainment, for besides the subject in hand, biography legitimately treats of the foibles, the fashions and the peculiarities of the age with which it deals, although it may have its lighter moments, is essentially sober; but biography, although it is never merely farcical or satirical, may touch vividly upon the lighter phases of life, and take you, as it were, into quaint and delightful byways, through private parks and into remote and lovely fields.

"Indeed," wrote Boswell in his introduction to his famous biography, "I cannot conceive a more perfect mode of writing any man's life than by not only relating the most important events of it in their order, but by interweaving what he privately wrote and said and thought; by which mankind are enabled, as it were, to see him live, and to live over each scene with him, as he actually advanced through the several stages of his life."

Biography, treated in that manner, must inevitably include much that is delightfully diverting. It will give you "the table talk of the great." It will recount those fascinating little incidents and anecdotes that history so often regards as beneath its notice. It will afford far more than a running account of a life, "beginning with a pedigree and ending with a funeral."

Nation's Brain Cells

In national government, as in all other great human concerns, it is not possible to destroy long established and complicated systems with a sledge hammer, no matter how evil their real character may be without injuring the innocent and temporarily, at least, halting the fluent and logical co-operation of the nation's brain cells.

STRANGE OPINION.

John Strange, one of the closest advisers, warmest adherents and most earnest supporter of Robert M. La Follette, of the opinion that the state's interest is best served by his retirement. He does not hesitate to say as much, and his own signature in a front page display article in the Oshkosh Northwestern in the issue of August 15th.

Mr. Strange gave the letter to the Northwestern for publication although it was addressed to George A. West, campaign manager for Governor Philipp, in answer to one from Mr. West asking his support of Governor Philipp's candidacy. From his home in Menasha, Mr. Strange wisely discusses the state political affairs, laying his objections to Governor Philipp entirely on the question of that gentleman's opposition to the water grabbing plans of the water power lobby of the past legislature.

He favors Mr. Hutton, whose opinion on this water power problem is too well known to be favorable to all the interests of the water power lobby to be questioned and whose nomination would mean they would be able perhaps to pass their much desired legislation, which is class—not mass—legislation in the next legislative session.

But Mr. Strange goes farther than the gubernatorial question and in discussing the senatorial choice, believes that Senator La Follette should be retired. He says in part:

"Upon the question of the United States senatorship, I would very much like to see Senator La Follette retired."

"I recognize the fact that Mr. Jeffris is a man of ample ability to serve with credit in the United States senate."

"I know Mr. Jeffris quite well, and I think favorably of him. I know Senator La Follette very intimately and count him a personal friend, and knowing him as I do am well convinced that the state of Wisconsin might be better served in the senate of the United States than by Senator La Follette with his present conception of government."

How is that from a former La Follette officeholder, as lieutenant governor, as a direct criticism of the senior Wisconsin senator, and the endorsement of Mr. Jeffris and his candidacy. Study it over and then you will understand the political revolution that is being fought out in the state with the present senator on the defensive for the first time in his career.

RESUMING WORK.

It is usually possible on the trains to distinguish the man who is returning from vacation from the one who is just starting. The former carries an air of depression. He is not alert to the sights and sounds and human contacts of the journey. Physically he is apt to look tired and thin as the result of overworking. He tried to put a month's enjoyment into two weeks.

Human nature is indolent. Work is an acquired habit. After living a free and idle life, one has to pull oneself together to resume the eight or ten hour daily grind.

Of course there are philosophical temperaments that make better use of rest time. The release from nervous strain of the daily tasks lets them look at their work from the outside in a more normal way. They see how friction can be removed and irritations avoided.

A vacation is a partial failure unless it gives one more power. And something besides mere physical power. The mind should be so refreshed that it works more surely and with quicker perceptions. It should be able to see where effort can be lightened and needless drudgery saved. Every year ought to bring better capacities for one's tasks. The rested brain should distinguish wider opportunities, and thus gather the cumulative fruit of past experience.

One hears much said about finding joy in labor. It ought to be possible. It may be difficult at the start to acquire the work habit. But like other hard things it is wholesome and up-building. The man who is doing his work ought to find a constant satisfaction in doing it better and more efficiently. This should give him the pleasure that flows from conscious exercise of skill. And there should be tangible reward for better service. If we can look at work in this spirit, resumption of our tasks after vacations will not seem onerous.

HUMAN BRUTES.

Drivers of teams these hot days

who mistreat their charges are no better than the lower caste of beasts that roam in the jungles and forests. The law makes provision for the punishment of this class of citizens and it should be invoked. Recently the driver of a heavily loaded wagon left his team standing in front of a residence, in one of the wards, and the animals started on a slow walk along the block. Immediately the driver appeared, lashed and whipped the poor, dumb brutes and backed them by their bits back to where he had first left them. To say the women and children of the neighborhood were aroused is putting it mildly and even the driver of another team offered to punch this human brute's head in retaliation for what he had done to his charges. Were it the first time this has happened by this same man it might have been excusable, but on different occasions he has mistreated his charges, much to the disgust of all who have witnessed his efforts at discipline which also included language that should only be used to a mule, with no hope of the future, and not an intelligent horse. Plenty of water, kind treatment, good cool stables and plenty of cooling foods and rests when hauling heavy loads are essentials to animals. The man who neglects his dumb charges, mistreats them, abuses them or permits others to do it is guilty of a crime against society and should be punished.

OUR SOLDIER BOYS.

Today marked the departure of the Second Separate company of the Wisconsin National Guard for a ten days' term of service at the camp of instruction at Camp Douglas, with all the environments of actual field duty. They are "rookies" now, but when they return fully equipped as soldiers, they will be qualified to take their places as one of the established institutions the city can be proud of. They have rented an armory, over the Kemmerer garage, which is being fitted out for them, and the citizens should take a hand in helping them furnish it so that it will equal any armory in the state. The young men who comprise the organization, have enlisted with a full understanding of their duties and they will make a good showing for themselves, rest assured.

In other cities where national guard units exist the citizens are most glad to help maintain them by popular subscriptions. While this will not be necessary, in the case of the new Janesville company, still a substantial purse might well be raised to help them make a start financially clear of all indebtedness. Later such a fund will be solicited. Meanwhile our soldier boys are sleeping beneath canvas at Camp Douglas, a new experience to the majority, and one which they will not soon forget.

The essential fact to remember on Primary day is to get out and vote and play your part as a franchised citizen of the state of Wisconsin. Of course it is not necessary to tell you to vote for your own interests, but if you think the Underwood tariff bill was enacted for the benefit of the farmer, the stock-raiser or the manufacturer, you will find your mistake if you vote for the progressive candidates.

Hughes continues his tour of the west, and every day he is making votes that will count when the ballots are cast next November. Hughes is the big man of the republican party and the way in which he is unifying the various factions demonstrates the national convention made a wise selection in naming him as the republican standard-bearer.

Next winter when you are shoveling the snow and ice off the walk you will long for the summer days we are sweltering under. Coal is going to be high this winter and if we could conserve a little of this summer heat it would be a wonderful thing.

The fellows who used to laugh at the militia boys as "tin soldiers," become more and more thankful every day as they hear from the border, that they had the wise foresight not to join the force.

There is much criticism of the way some of the state militia has been trained, but it is believed that any way they used to get together on the occasion of the annual dances.

The country editor who used to get his pay in garden vegetables, does not seem quite as absurd as formerly at present prices.

No matter what is the outcome of the teamsters' strike, the public will pay the cost sooner or later, so why worry?

Some newspapers' idea of covering a political campaign is interviewing the wives of the candidates on what they like for dinner.

Essentials of a Home.

It is not money as much as energy, thought and love that converts a place into a home, and there are few things more contagious than happiness. Children who have a happy home, surrounded with flowers, fruits, simple comforts and innocent pleasures, no matter how inexpensive the house and its furnishings, are like magnets in the community, and will draw their companions to that home to share with them its joys. — Progressive Farmer.

FAMILY SIMPLES FOUND BEST

Great European War Has Opened the Eyes of Surgeons to a Variety of New Things.

Experience beats theory in the approximately exact science of surgery as in more experimental departments of knowledge. A half century of scientific exposition of the discoveries of Lister and Pasteur in clinics, hospitals and laboratories has filled the drug stores with a multitude of complex and costly antiseptics that have been thrown aside in the war for old-fashioned dressings.

The drugs whose prices rose to almost prohibitive figures on the early demand of the war began to be superseded by family simples. The British surgeons are using sugar for dressing infected wounds and sea water for fresh injuries, with better results than they got from the scarce carbolic acids, iodoforms and other specifics of science.

The curious discovery that garlic is an antiseptic dressing was made from inspection of the remarkable success of a French peasant nurse in dressing wounds. Now the smelly bulb is sold in drug stores by the ton instead of by the ounce. Hindus have used plasters of garlic for ages.

Our scientific grandmothers knew what they were about in many things. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Cow's Fondness for Roses.
Because E. R. Patterson's milch cow walked into Walter G. Hyman's rose garden and consumed a sundry assortment of blossoms, Hayward Park, a fashionable residence district of San Mateo, is in the throes of a Civil war, avers a San Mateo (Cal.) telegram to the New York World. The law has been invoked and threats and counter threats are breathed.

Hyman filed a written complaint with the San Mateo city trustees, who referred it to Poundmaster George Maggi.

Recently Patterson made public the following letter to Hyman:

"I hand you herewith my check for $32.25 to cover the full amount of damages, as claimed by you, done by my cow when she recently broke loose and got into your yard. In view of the very childish 'tell-the-teacher' attitude you took in taking this small accident up with sundry city officials and others, I think I might have felt that I was justly absolved from any financial obligation to you. However, I guess your action carries with it its own punishment, as I know that I should have to carry the brand real men put on one who assumes the attitude you did on this occasion."

When the Atlantic fleet set out recently on its annual cruise, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo's son was among the civilian recruits. Young McAdoo's interest in preparedness and a bigger and stronger navy is pretty well shown in his eagerness to join in and do his share. Moreover, he says he'll enjoy a sailor's life.

BADGER MASONRY IS 100 YEARS OLD NOW

FIRST OF THE 313 LODGES IN STATE ESTABLISHED AT OLD FORT HOWARD.

WILL BUILD FINE HOME

State Order to Make Van Brunt Property at Dousman a Refuge—Brief History of Order.

J. A. Waterous, in a recent issue of the Milwaukee Sentinel, prints the following interesting story of Masonry in Wisconsin:

Free Masonry came to territory that is now an interesting and a historic part of Wisconsin well high in the century ago. Soldiers of the regular army stationed at Fort Howard on the bank of the lower Fox river, now part of the city of Janesville, for years conducted a Masonic lodge. This was the initial lodge in Wisconsin and a large portion of which is known as the great northwest.

Most of the officers and many of the men on duty in the old fort, shielding the white settlers from Indian depredations, were zealous members of the Masonic lodge in what is now one of the greatest and best states of the union, with its nearly 35,000 Masons and 2,000 members of the Eastern Star, loyal and substantial friends of the order.

Dissolved About 1830. Because of the change of stations from Fort Howard, the army lodge went out of existence in the thirties. The permanent lodge, established in the territory of Wisconsin, began seventy-six years ago at the then small village of Mineral Point, when on Oct. 8, 1840, a dispensation was granted for No. 1, which number the lodge still holds.

In 1843 lodges were organized at Platteville and Milwaukee, named "Aurora" and "Berkshire." In the latter lodge were organized the first lodge named and at Potomac, Madison, Beloit, Sheboygan, Milwaukee, No. 13, sixty-nine years ago; Janesville, Avoca, Port Washington, Racine, Lancaster, Green Bay, another at Sheboygan, Shullsburg, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and Burlington.

State Has 313 Lodges. In all, 313 lodges have been instituted in Wisconsin. During the seventy-six years of Masonry's existence in the territory and state, leaving out the army lodge at Fort Howard, the order has expended $500,000 caring for the sick and the families of the sick and departed brethren.

In view of the large expenditure, and the known large growth of the order, its prospects are bright. Temples and lodgerooms it has constructed and the many millions that are among its members, it seems almost ridiculously small. Wisconsin Masons waited nearly seventy years before moving in the matter of establishing a Masonic home.

Will Surpass Others. A few years ago, by the generosity of a member, it was made possible to lay the foundation of a Masonic home that probably will be second to no other institution of the kind in the world, in due time.

Brother Willard A. Van Brunt, better known than he knew when he presented a farm and buildings valued at something over $100,000 to Wisconsin Masons, for ten years that body, of Scottish Rite Masons has managed the property to decided advantage; but it was found that a broader foundation should be planned. How should it be done? Members with a vision, good minds and equally good hearts set to work to devise the plan and design. The original donor, Mr. Van Brunt, came to the front, and in such manner that it was made easy to effect the change, which was to be a transfer, without money and without price, of the property, now worth $120,000, at a low estimate, to the grand lodge of the state, thus making it and the home of fraternal and financial interest to every other degree of Mason in the state, or who may, in the future, become a member.

Contributed $200,000 More. Mr. Van Brunt, the Horton manufacturer, thirty-third degree Mason, let it be known that when the transfer was made from the consistory to the grand lodge, he would make a contribution of $200,000 for the benefit of the home.

At its annual session last June the grand lodge created the needed legislation to take over the property and to secure every Mason in the state the pleasure of an annual investment, which, in the aggregate, with the present members, will place in the home $100,000 every twelve months. That, with the interest on the Van Brunt contribution of $200,000, and the income from the farm and the large herd of pure blooded Holsteins, made it plain that in many years will end before all of the buildings, fireproof, and of modern construction, including an ample dormitory, hospital and amusement and recreation hall, will be supplied.

200 Acres Cultivated. The farm, located in the choicest agricultural district of Waushara county, near Dousman, consists of 219 acres, 206 of which are under cultivation.

One of the attractions is a beautiful grove of thirty or forty acres. Several acres are devoted to lawns that are delightfully kept. There are many spots for the veteran members to rest and much time on the warm days of summer. They also are well adapted to the numerous Masonic picnics that are sure to follow the annual business one under the auspices of independent lodge, last Saturday, when 300 men, women and children passed seven happy hours.

The Grand lodge has placed the home and farm in good hands. The trustees are William Currie, who has been connected with the home as an official ever since the consistory took charge, Capt. R. B. Lang and Willard A. Van Brunt.

Has Herd of 100. A few years ago the trustees bought nine head of pure blood Holsteins, paying $900 for them. Two years later they sold two of the young animals for $150. Now there is a herd of 100. Beginning next season, they will sell annually the prices ranging from $50 to $450, and later they will have stock that will sell for from $1,000 to $5,000 a head.

Every Wisconsin Mason must find pleasure in the knowledge that soon there will be a Masonic home in which there can become members of all worthy brothers and their wives who need its shelter and care, can become members of as fine a Masonic home as ever was constructed.

GERMANY FEELS PINCH OF SCANTY LEATHER SUPPLY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Aug. 21.—The barefoot boy is coming back into his own as a result of the war and its increasing scarcity of leather. Various reports have come of the removal of prohibitions against attending schools barefoot, and the city council of Munich has now removed the ban against the youngsters in street cars. The public authorities intend to make room for barefoot children inside the car, so far as possible, so that they may not be trodden on while standing on the platform.

PAWN ALL KINDS OF ARTICLES

Men and Women Who Patronize Their "Uncle" Find Him Willing to Take Any Chance.

There is scarcely anything in this wide world that a person up against it financially can't pawn, for the pawnbroker is a gambler, whose instincts either are acquired or born in him, and he will take a chance on anything provided the article is not falling to pieces.

Women, according to the pawnbroker, work their own ruin frequently by liquor and drug addiction, but in a great many cases it is derelict husbands who cause the women to patronize the pawnshop. And the woman makes the sacrifice to protect her children.

"A woman who is struggling to save her children," the pawnbroker said, "will begin by pawning household things. The alarm clock or another kind of clock will go first. Then she will sacrifice a few dishes. Maybe some of the furniture will go next. Her clothes will remain for the last, because she needs clothes in her quest for work. The best clothes will be saved, if at all possible, but I have known hundreds of cases where they have pawned corsets to keep the family supplied with a bit of food in times of want."

In things offered for pawn the three-ball man says that razors lead by a wide margin, while alarm clocks, strange as it may seem, come second. Umbrellas, too, are a common article to be pawned. And only about thirty per cent of these articles eventually are redeemed.

SAW EVIL IN USE OF COFFEE

Beverage Was Once Looked Upon by Orthodox Mohammedans as Insidious to Public Morals.

For one who has ever walked the streets of a Turkish town it is almost impossible to imagine them without coffee houses. Yet, those resorts are of comparative recency among the Turks, and they were not acclimated without bitter opposition.

While the properties of the coffee berry are supposed to have been discovered or rediscovered by an Arab dervish in the thirteenth century, they were unknown in Constantinople until 300 years later. The first coffee house was opened there in 1554 by one Shamsi, a native of Aleppo. The beverage so quickly appreciated was as quickly looked upon by the orthodox as insidious to the public morals.

It was variously denounced as one of the four elements of the world of pleasure, one of the four pillars of the rent of lubricity, one of the four cushions of the couch of voluptuousness, and one of the four ministers of the devil—the other three being tobacco, opium and wine. "Kahveh," whence our coffee, is a slight modification of an Arabic word—literally meaning "that which takes away the appetite."

H. G. Dwight in Scribner's Magazine.

All Began With a Dime.

"Last spring a year ago," says Farm and Fireside, "a ten-year-old neighbor boy was given ten cents by his grandmother. He purchased a packet of good cucumber seed with his money and grew a nice patch of cucumbers for the local village market. His crop of cucumbers brought him a little over $8 in money, all of which his mother allowed him to keep and spend as he pleased."

"With $1 of his money this boy purchased a few little things for himself, and with the other $5 he purchased a ewe lamb. By this spring his ewe lamb had grown into a mature mother sheep, and she gave birth to twin lambs. So now the boy has three sheep from his investment. The mother sheep is now worth $10, and the lambs are worth $5 each, making a total value of $20 he has earned with his ten cents in a year and a half. Besides, he sold wool this spring from the mother sheep for $2.45, which he has placed in the savings bank as the beginning of a bank account of his own."

Joffre Goes Fishing.

An American writer who saw General Joffre at the front says he often goes fishing. Military plans for 3,000,000 troops are evolved in this way.

The head of the grand army of France resembles Oyama and Grant, remarks "Girard" in the Philadelphia Ledger. "In the war with Russia the supreme commander of the Japanese often went off in solitude to fish. His subordinates interpreted that as a good sign."

Gen. Horace Porter, who was on Grant's staff during the last year of the Civil war, said that the Union chieftain did a lot of whittling in the Wilderness campaign. When he whittled he was thinking.

Bismarck said he could tell in 1870 when all was well with the German army by watching Von Moltke. If the chief of staff accepted the first cigar offered him things were serious, but if he carefully selected one he knew that Von Moltke's mind was free.

Largest Agricultural Warehouse.

New Orleans has the largest agricultural warehouse in the world. It has a capacity of 2,000,000 bales of cotton, and is adapted to the storage of all other packed commodities such as sugar and coffee. It was built at a cost of $3,500,000 by the state of Louisiana and is said to reduce the cost of handling any agricultural commodity 40 per cent. There are 23 acres of ground under roof, while the entire plant occupies 150 acres.—National Geographic Magazine.

STOCK COMPANY PLEASES AUDIENCE

Milton Schuster and Company Puts on "A Prince for a Day" for Open-Ing Comedy.

Milton Schuster and his ever popular musical comedy stock company opened up their third day engagement here at the New Myers Theatre last night with a sparkling girl and song show, "A Prince for a Day." In spite of the evening being one of the warmest of the summer—a plenty found the new playhouse a welcome retreat from the sultry evening heat.

This first evening's bill proved to be a show only meant for laughing purposes, and it lived up to its purpose. The story contained the usual simple little love drama, running throughout, and with the aid of the entire cast pulled it across in fairly good manner. The song numbers and dances were all right, as was the brightly chorused of pretty dolls, whose gavotte brightened up every scene in which they appeared.

Milton Schuster provoked many a laugh in his humorous characterization of Ike, and along with his fat friend, the Dutchman, kept things moving rapidly in their side-splitting antics. Schuster and his show crew, if you are out for an evening of real amusing entertainment, will be a comedy farce "Prancing Around," with Schuster and pretty girls de luxe will be shown tonight at the New Myers Theatre.

THEY SHOW FARMERS HOW POTATOES CAN BE GROWN EVEN ON THE WORST OF SOIL.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Oconto, Wis., Aug. 21.—One of the largest potato experiment farms in the middle west is being conducted near here by O. R. George of the Northern Potato Company and Geo. Meyer of this city. The men are undertaking to demonstrate to farmers that potatoes can be raised on some of the bad soil in this country with good results if the modern methods of potato raising are followed.

One patch of thirty acres shows good prospects although the ground was originally infested with quack grass but by constant cultivation has been kept clean. Frequent cultivation has helped retain the moisture in the ground, so that the drought caused no material damage. A yield of two hundred bushels to the acre or six thousand bushels from the field is expected.

For Bob, like all men in his condition, was quite certain that he was in perfect possession of his faculties, and therefore he very naturally resented such an absurd assertion. "Don't you believe it," he protested. "I know what I'm doing, all right, all right."

"A man never speaks his mind until he's drunk," Lila said. "Right! I'm not half drunk yet," Jim urged the suitor on with a nervous laugh, at the same time avoiding his sister's eyes. "She's stalling, Bob. Make her answer."

"Yes or no?" forcefully insisted the wooer, determined, now, to show his complete sobriety.

"No," Jim sobriety. Wharton's hand and shook it lustily. "Congratulations, old man; that means yes. I'm her brother, and I know. Why, she told father that you were her ideal, and said he'd be happy if you two were married. He meant it, too; he's a mighty sick man."

Lorelei stirred uncomfortably, and the faint color in her cheeks faded slowly. "Well talk about it some other time—tomorrow. Please don't tense the poor man any more. He didn't know that he was saying, and—now, for heaven's sake, talk about something else."

Jim leaped to his feet with a grin and a chuckle, then drew Lila from her chair, saying: "The lovers are embarrassed, and they're dying to be alone. Let's leave 'em to talk it over."

"She's a dear, Bob, and I wish you both joy. But don't kiss her here," said Lila, warningly; then, with a wave of her hand, she turned toward the dancing room with Jim.

"Call us when you've fixed the date," laughed the latter, over his shoulder. When he and Lila had danced the encore and returned to the table Bob rose unsteadily, glass in hand, and nodded at them.

"Thanks, noble comrades," he proclaimed; "she's mine!" "Hurrah!" Lila kissed Lorelei enthusiastically. Jim seized Bob's hand, crying:

"Brother!" He waved to a waiter and ordered a magnum of champagne. "Bring me a wreath of orange blossoms and a wedding cake, too." His jubilation attracted the attention of the other diners; the occupants of a nearby table began to applaud, whereupon Bob beamed with delight.

sent the waiter scurrying with his bill, helped Robert secure hat and stick, and then dived into a telephone booth as a woodchuck enters its hole. When he had disposed his three charges inside a taxicab he disappeared briefly, to return with a basket of champagne upon his arm. It is a wise general who provides himself in advance with ammunition.

The smooth celerity with which this whole adventure ran its course argued a thorough preparation on James' part, but Lorelei was in no condition to analyze. Even at the journey's end there was a suspicious lack of delay. The vehicle stopped in a narrow business street, now dark and dismal; its occupants were hurried up a stairway and into a room filled with law-books, where a sleepy justice of the peace was nodding in a cloud of cigar smoke. There followed a noisy shuffling of chairs, some mumbled questions and answers, the crackle of papers, a deal of unintelligible rattle, then a man's heavy seal-ring was slipped upon Lorelei's finger, and she knew herself to be Mrs. Robert Wharton. It was all confused, unimpressive, unreal. She was never able fully to recall the picture of that room or the events that occurred there. They formed but a part of the kaleidoscopic jumble of the night's occurrences.

The wedding party was in the cab once more, and it was under way. It was all so like a nightmare that Lorelei began to doubt her own sanity. Once at rest in the dim-lit tunnel of the ferry boat, however, she was brought sharply to herself by hearing her brother exclaim: "Say! He hasn't kissed her yet."

Lila shrieked, and Bob stiffened himself, then slipped an arm around his bride. As she shrank away he mumbled angrily: "Here! I won't stand for that," and crushed her to him. "You are beautiful—beautiful. And you're mine. She's mine, eh? No foolishness about that, is there?"

As they drew in toward the New York side the chauffeur inquired, "Where to, now?" "Why, drive us—," Jim hesitated. There was a silence which Lila broke with a titter.

"Never thought of that," Bob turned again to Jim, who solved the difficulty with a word.

"Why, you're both going to Lorelei's place, of course; then you can make your plans tomorrow."

The bride's half-strangled protest was lost in a burst of enthusiasm from Lila.

"Surest thing you know," she cried; "and we'll stop in my flat for a farewell bottle; I've got a whole case. We'll end the night with another party at Jarvis' expense. He's crazy about marriages, anyhow. Ha! But you needn't tell him I was—full, understand?" She fell silent suddenly; then burst into a loud laugh. "Bah! I should worry!"

The ferry drew into its slip, the cab motor shivered, the metallic rattle of windshield and chain proclaimed the return to Manhattan. Up the deserted avenues the vehicle sped, while inside the white-faced bride covered with flutters looked and heart sick with dread.

CHAPTER XIV.

Hitchy Koo had gone home. When Lila ushered her friends in and snapped on the lights, the apartment, save for the delicious panel, was unoccupied. She flung down her hat, coat and gloves, then, with the help of Jim, prepared glasses and a cooler. Lorelei was restless; the thought of more wine, more ribaldry, revolted her, and yet she was grateful for this delay, brief though it promised to be. Any interruption, trivial or tragic, would be welcome. She was forced to pledge her own happiness in a glass, then in a wild moment of desperation longed to deaden herself with liquor as the others had done.

Jim and Lila were talking loudly when a key grated in the lock, the door of the little apartment opened, and Jarvis Hammon paused on the threshold, glowering.

Lila's wineglass shattered upon the floor. "Jarvis! You frightened me," she cried. "Evening, Mr. Hammon," Bob lurched to his feet, upsetting his chair. "This is a surprise."

Jim had risen likewise, but Hammon had eyes for no one except Lila. "Ah! You're home again, finally. Where have you been?" he demanded, in a voice heavy with anger. His hostile tone, his threatening attitude brought an uncomfortable silence upon the hearers.

matched that of her elderly admirer. Hammon dropped his smoldering gaze to the half-empty glasses, then raised it, snoring at Jim.

"Humph! Who is this?" Lila made her guest known. "Mr. Knight, Mr. Hammon. I believe you know Miss Knight."

"So you're the one," Hammon showed his teeth in a sardonic smile. "I'm the one what?" inquired Jim, with a sickly attempt at pleasantry. "What does she see in you?" Hammon measured the young man with contemptuous curiosity.

"Don't be an ass, Jarvis," began Lila. "—"

She was interrupted roughly. "That's precisely what I don't intend to be; and I don't intend that Bob shall be one, either." He turned to young Wharton. "What are you doing here, my boy? I'm sorry to see you with these grafters."

Hammon indicated Jim and Lorelei with a nod. "In? What's that?" Bob stiffened. "Lorelei's my wife. 'S true, Jarvis."

"Wife?" Hammon took a heavy step forward. "Wife? You're drunk, Bob!" "P'raps. But we're mar—"

"So! You landed him, did you?" Hammon glared at the brother and sister. "You got him drunk and married him, eh? And Lila helped you, I suppose. Fine! They're crooks, Bob, and they've made a fool of you."

Bob checked the speech on Lorelei's lips with an upraised hand, then said slowly, with a painful effort to sober himself: "We've been good friends, Jarvis; you're a kind of an uncle to me, but—you're a liar. You've lied about my wife, so I s'pose I've got to beat you." With a backward kick he sent his overturned chair flying, then made for Hammon. But Jim seized him by the arm; Lorelei sprang in front of him.

"Mr. What—Bob," she cried. "You mustn't—for my sake." The three stared for an instant until Hammon said, more quietly:

"I couldn't fight with you, Bob—you're my own son. But you've been told out, and—and it looks as if I'd been told out, too. Now go home and sleep. I didn't come here to quarrel with you; I have a matter of my own to settle." He laid a hand on Bob's shoulder in an effort to pacify him, but the young man's indignation flared into life with drunken persistence. It was Lorelei who, at last prevailed upon her husband to leave peacefully, and she was about to accompany him when Lila Lynn checked her.

During this angry scene Lila had not risen nor spoken. Her eyes were very black and very brilliant against her pallor, and she was smiling derisively.

"Wait!" she interposed. "I'm not going to stay here with this old—fool." Hammon grew purple; he ground his teeth.

"You shall stay. We're going to have a talk and settle things once for all."

Lila rose swiftly with a complete change of manner; she was smiling no longer; her face was sinister. "Very well," she agreed. "Tonight. Why not? But I want Lorelei to stay and—hear. Yes."

"Are You Just Drunk?" He Said.

solent amusement. "Are you just drunk," he said, uncertainly, "or—have you completely lost your senses?"

"Yes, I'm drunk. What are you going to do about it?" "—Why, you mustn't talk like that; you're not yourself, Lila. He ran his eyes over the luxurious little room; he wiped his face with a shaky hand, feeling that it was he who had lost his senses. "The wine is talking. When I asked you to marry me I never dreamed—"

She eyed him silently with an expression he could not fathom, then asked, "Tell me, do you really care for me?"

Jarvis Hammon was a virile, headstrong man; his world had come suddenly, inexplicably to an end. His voice was hoarse, as he answered:

"Do you think I'd have made a fool of myself if I hadn't? Do you think I'd have ruined myself?" she interrupted, quickly.

Where It Came. "The average salary in our railroad shops and stores," says a young man, "is $15 a week. Our boys say it costs $3 of that to keep company with a girl. The movies, the lake, the jitneys, boat hire, an occasional show—it eats up the dimes. And the boys say it must be done—what we need in this town is a get-together club with the cost of courting cut down."—Woman's Home Companion.

WE WANT AN EGG BEATER. THEY HAVE BEEN MOVED TO THE JEWELRY DEPT.

EGG BEATERS

The war has caused a great shortage in egg beaters. A great many of the chemicals used in the manufacture of egg beaters are imported from abroad, and the supply of those has been almost totally shut off. Furthermore, the egg-beater manufacturers, like manufacturers in scores of other lines, have suddenly turned their attention to the manufacture of munitions. The consequence is that there is a variable egg-beater famine in America today.

An intimate study of economic and market conditions in the United States at the present time discloses many interesting and unsuspected facts. This egg-beater famine, for instance, is not widely known about. However, it exists.

Brides and grooms just starting into housekeeping are well enough aware of the egg-beater shortage. Many stores are entirely sold out. It is necessary to visit one store after another before any choice or variety of egg beaters is to be found, and then the prices asked are found to be outlandish. "It is the war," say the clerks, with a shrug of their shoulders, when you protest. In one store after another they say "It is the war." Then they explain the whole situation with an undertone of exaltation in their voices which indicates that they have made the same explanation hundreds of times before.

(This is the first and last of a series of articles by Mr. Herold on the effect of the European war on American industries.)

No Foundation. A bold, unsubdued citizen went to a new boarding house, and as he had always met his obligations promptly, he had become notably outspoken. On his second day the hostess asked: "Why don't you say a blessing, Mr. Golden?" He looked over the table and said gloomily: "I'd like to know what for?"

What to Do for Itching Skins

There is usually immediate relief for itchy skin, burning and disfigured by eczema, ringworm, or similar tormenting skin-trouble, in a warm bath with resinal soap and a simple application of resinal ointment. The soothing, healing resinal medication stops itching at once, and soon clears away all trace of eruption, even in severe and stubborn cases, unless the disorder is due to some serious internal disorder.

You need never hesitate to use resinal. It is a doctor's prescription that has been used by other physicians for twenty years in the treatment of skin affections. It contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. Every druggist sells resinal ointment and resinal soap. Resinal Soap soothes tender skins and helps to make poor complexions clear, fresh and velvety, because it contains this resinal prescription.

Her justification for what she has won, and her plea for still larger power, is her moral superiority.

Musical Instrument Output.
American manufacturers of musical instruments, with an annual output valued at about $100,000,000, export only $300,000 worth annually to foreign countries. American pianos are chiefly exported to Canada, where they constitute about 90 per cent of the total imports of that class to Great Britain, for reshipment to other parts of the world, and for reshipment to Central and South America. Our player pianos are sent in about equal numbers to Australia, England, Italy and Argentina, and in much larger quantities to Canada.

NOBLEST OF ALL VIRTUE

True Friendship Has Qualities Which Render It a "Thing Apart"—Steppling-Stone to Love.

Avowed with candor and maintained with good faith, friendship is ever the stepping-stone of love. John Hare goes a trifle higher with his definition of the term, calling it "Love, without either flowers or yell." Perhaps the maximum breadth and depth of meaning, however, finds expression in Grimald's lines: "Friendship is the flavor of flowers, the lively spirit of life, the sacred bond of blissful peace, the stalwart staunch of strife." Accept this or coin other definitions as we may, we must not forget that even though it is the freest of all the sentiments, it is by no means the lightest; on the contrary, true friendship, and I speak only of this kind of a friendship in its sublimest and fullest sense, is the noblest of all the virtues. Such friendship, whose laws are austere and eternal, cherishes confidence and lauds fidelity. It writes faults and frailties upon the waters, and virtues and victories upon the rocks. It downy bigotry, dissolves doubts and destroys the egotistical "I" for the co-operative "we." Like all knowledge, it is free—divine and human. It runs along to where the natural ends and the supernatural begins. "It keeps company with the sallies of the wit and the trances of religion." It underlies the whole superstructure of fraternalism and links us with home and with all that we understand and love. Take it away, and it disjoins and dislocates everything. Lost, it is "chaos once again." Loyal and obedient, it is a shield and a high tower, standing for equality and justice, and leading the world on one system of laws for all people, and a fraternal recognition of the solidarity of the race—"Friendship, Charity and Benevolence." George Leon Varney, in National Magazine.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—"Ping" Bodie, San Francisco outfielder and leading slugger of the Pacific Coast league, and formerly with the Chicago White Sox, will be a member of Connie Mack's Philadelphia American league team, according to announcement tonight by Harry Wolverton, manager of the San Francisco club. How much was not told, but it was said the amount contained five figures.

No other players were involved in the deal.

WILL BOEHLING HELP THE INDIANS CLIMB?

The signing of Joe Boehling, southpaw hurler, with Moeller of the Washington Senators is thought by the Cleveland Indians' owner to promise a faster clip in their dash for the rag. Boehling and Moeller joined the team at once. Elmer Smith, outfielder, and Joe Leonard, infielder, went to Washington in exchange for Griff's pair.

MORRIS MILLER

Chi Tze Ying of Pekin Methodist university was the most consistent winner at the Fourth North China track and field meet held recently on the grounds of the Methodist university at Pekin. He won the 100-yard dash in 10 3/5, and scored points for his school in the discus throw and the broad jump. He also won the pentathlon and decathlon championships.

Cleveland has given the Portland club a cash bonus of $4,000 for Louie Glatko, a sacker, according to announcement recently. The amount of cash involved is said to be $4,000. Two of the players going to Portland are Grover Loudmire and Joe Evans. Guisto is regarded as the most valuable player in the Coast league.

Art Osman, who rowed No. 4 in the Syracuse winning varsity eight, has been chosen captain next year. Osman also is a single sculler and may represent the Duluth Boat club at the national regatta in Duluth August 11 and 12. He is eligible to row in the association singles class. He is twenty-two years of age and is a junior at Syracuse.

Both Ieland and Stanford and University of California lost four of their star track men by graduation. Stanford loses Murray, Noxon, Sisson and Wilson, while California loses Pinus Frisco, Preble, Elson and Baker.

George Sisler is probably more responsible for the sudden flight of the other players toward the flag than any other player. Sisler is already a recognized star. Though this is only his second year as a professional ball player, he is regarded as the best and has been picked as the successor to the great Ty Cobb. Sisler can do anything with a baseball. He can hit and run bases and play first base and pitch. He won a game against Walter Johnson last season. Sisler never argues with an umpire, and does not make a peep from the time a game starts until it is over.

One of the signs of the increasing growth of popularity of lawn tennis is the great number of inventions and patents in recent years which have been applied solely to the game. Their number is rapidly becoming more formidable, a fact which has not been noticed by newer players, and treatment for the surfaces of courts, together with new apparatus for quickly perfecting the playing surfaces.

Harry Pollok is trying to match Charley Weinert with Jess Willard. It would be a good match. It would furnish Weinert with his one chance of becoming heavyweight champion within the next few years. Weinert is a big youngster. He stands six feet three, and weighs over 200 pounds. He has long arms, is clever, and possesses a fair punch. He would never knock Willard out, but if Jess failed to get down to his best condition, and there is some doubt of his ability to reduce now, Weinert might outpoint him in twenty rounds and take the title. If Willard refuses without meeting Weinert, the New York boy is not likely to be champion. For should Big Jess leave the roped arena unbeaten, little Jack Dillon will undoubtedly be acclaimed his successor. Dillon has knocked Weinert out and beaten him badly in ten rounds. It is little doubt that he can do so again. Weinert is not apt to win a championship from him. It is an odd situation. Little Dillon cannot even get a match with Willard. The difference in size would make such a fair punch. Yet Dillon can beat and had beaten all the contenders. One of these contenders may come along and beat Willard. Weinert, as we have pointed out, may do so.

SEE INFLUENCE OF WEST IN TURKISH NATION.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Constantinople, Aug. 21.—As an evidence of the constant increase of Occidental influences in Turkey, a considerable number of young Turkish women were permitted to exhibit their paintings at an exhibition, just concluded, of the work of the pupils of the Imperial Lyceum Club.

Some two hundred paintings in all, many of them by Turkish painters, were placed on view. Critics familiar with Occidental painting and judging the work exhibited by Occidental ideals, commented very favorably on many of them.

The jury of award was headed by the Grand Vizier, himself a painter. He has been empowered to have struck off medals to be awarded at the two exhibitions annually that are contemplated for the future.

"PLATTSBURG OF THE WEST" OPENS WITH 600 ROOKIES AT SALT LAKE CITY TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 21.—A western Plattsburg opened with 600 Rocky Mountain rookies in khaki on the broad Ft. Douglas parade ground near here today.

Over the nearby hills and in camp the 600 will be drilled in the art of warfare for the next month. Bankers, cowboys, clerks, merchants and professional men are among the number.

Three or the Coast Artillery companies from Southern California points form the skeleton of the encampment. Infantry fighting will be the principal study, but instruction also will be given in other branches.

PACIFIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY RESUMES SERVICE TO ORIENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—The Pacific Mail Steamship company will resume its Oriental passenger service tomorrow when the old burning, 14,000-ton "Equador" gets underway from here for Hong Kong, Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Manila and Hong Kong.

The Pacific Mail company quit the trans-Pacific trade when the seamen's law became effective on the theory that the law imposed too many hardships on the steamship companies for the trade to be a paying proposition. But the freight bringing $20 a ton because of the war shortage of ships the company was soon reorganized.

As the new ships are all burners they do away with the picturesque but uncomfortable process of taking on coal at Oriental ports. Travelers probably will be glad to change the romance of this spectacle for the more prosaic act of taking in oil. Oil is taken in much as water. Long processions of orientals used to load the ships with coal from handbaskets, also loading the passengers' eyes, ears, noses, throats and luggage with a lot of coal dust.

RESERVE FOREST—STREAM TO HER OWN NATIONALITY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Athens, Aug. 21.—The immense forest fires that have swept Greece during the past few weeks have been a source of particular chagrin to Queen Sophie, for the Queen of the Hellenes has been the leading figure in the conservation movement in Greece. The barren mountains that three thousand years ago were clad with verdure have been a text for the Queen in her crusade to teach the modern Greeks the need of preservation of the woods and streams.

Each Queen Sophie plants a tree with her own hand as a tribute to the women of Greece. But this year she had no luck, for during the night following this Arbor Day ceremony a wandering shepherd passed with his flock and the newly planted tree was ignominiously eaten by the sheep.

MACERATED RUBBER GERMAN LIVER SAUSAGE; MERCHANT FINED BY THE AUTHORITIES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Berlin, Aug. 21.—A merchant in Hamburg has been fined 2,000 marks for one of the most remarkable offenses yet recorded against the pure food laws. A "liver sausage" sold by him for two marks and twenty pennings the pound was found on analysis to contain macerated rubber, stamped hair and gelatin. There was neither liver nor other flesh nor fats in the sausage.

SOUTH AMERICAN FARMERS OBJECT TO HEAVINESS OF FARM MACHINERY SOLD THEM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 21.—A committee of South American farmers today complained bitterly to representatives of agricultural implement concerns in the United States against the heaviness of farm machinery, particularly horse-drawn equipment, that North American manufacturers ship into this territory and try to persuade them to buy.

German manufacturers whose trade is now cut off, had studied the South American farmer's desires in this respect and gave him what he wanted. The smaller, lighter German machinery was purchased and the heavy North American product let alone.

Today the American agents, as the only machinery men in the field, are trying to compel the farmers to buy heavy implements on the theory that a big machine can do more work at a relatively lower initial cost and less wear, proportionately, than a smaller one. The weakness of their argument is that the South American horse is small and light and can't draw a heavy load.
